Why prep for the MCAT?

- Less than half of all applicants to medical school get in.¹
- A poor score on the MCAT is the #1 application killer.²
- The average MCAT score of a matriculating student is over 31, and rising each year.¹
- A strong MCAT score improves your chances of earning merit-based scholarships.²
- The AAMC recommends at least 3 months of studying to prepare for the MCAT.³

engaging, enthusiastic – he really cared about how we were going to do on the MCAT • You could tell he was very passionate about this course • You are a blessing to MCAT students • I have had 97 teachers/professors in my lifetime; he was probably the best teacher I have ever had •
You have all the resources that we needed to learn all about the MCAT! • I thoroughly enjoyed my Kaplan experience and found it incredibly useful to increase my score! • Thank you!

So worth the money!

- The content review for the science courses was awesome
- He was very willing to help us not just with class material, but also with other questions regarding medical school!
- Kaplan cares about student success—I’d recommend this course to anyone
- This is hands down the best MCAT class I have ever taken
- He was very encouraging and positive. He made the students want to feel confident and want to study harder!
- I thought the Kaplan experience was fantastic
- Online materials are above and beyond
- Absolutely fantastic teacher –
